

AI Risk Audit

What We Found When We Audited Our Own AI

Before auditing anyone else's AI, we applied the full Ikwe Risk Audit to our own production systems. This document shows what we found — and what changed.

Ikwe builds behavioral emotional safety infrastructure for AI — the EQ that allows IQ to scale without breaking trust.

KEY FINDINGS

What the Audit Revealed

*Founders are structurally blind. Not from incompetence — from proximity.
Your expertise fills gaps users will fall through.*

Across three production AI systems and 948 evaluated responses, the audit surfaced three structural failure classes:

Authority Drift	Systems used clinical-adjacent language users interpreted as diagnosis. Founders knew it was a tool — users did not.
Emotional Escalation	Systems stayed present beyond safe thresholds during crisis interactions. Founders could self-regulate — users could not.
Founder-as-Safety -Mechanism	Undocumented manual intervention acting as an invisible kill switch for three months. The founder does not scale.

54.7%
introduced emotional risk

43%
no repair after harm

42–67%
risk reduction post-Ikwe

MEASURED OUTCOMES

Risk Reduction — Before / After

Risk Dimension	Baseline	Post-Mitigation	Reduction
Emotional Escalation	HIGH (80)	MEDIUM (40)	-50%
Dependency Formation	MEDIUM (48)	LOW (20)	-58%
Authority Drift	MEDIUM (36)	LOW (18)	-50%
Scale Amplification	MEDIUM (48)	MEDIUM (28)	-42%
Governance Failure	LOW (24)	LOW (8)	-67%

The fixes were structural, not intuitive — they transfer to any team.
